MEDICINAL.

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the chain of life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of heart or lungs, liver or kidneys, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

"I was in poor health when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mr. Elmer Lawler, of Volga, Jefferson Co., Ind. "I had stomach, kidney, heart, and lung troubles. Was not able to do any work. I had a severe cough and hemorrhage of the lungs, but after using your medicine a while I commenced to gain in strength and flesh, and stopped coughing right away. Took about six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I feel like a different person. I gladly recommend your medicine to all sufferers, for I know it cured me."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure that foul breath.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

A sensational development in the mystery of the deaths of Clarence Foster, of Good Ground, L. I., and Miss Sarah R. Lawrence, of Freeport, whose bodies were washed ashore in Tiana Bay Saturday morning, came yesterday when William Walton, a young painter of Good Ground, told for the first time a story of a fierce fight on the beach in front of the Tonnell House some time between 2 and 3 o'clock Tuesday morning between Foster and Louis Disbrow, the sweetheart of Miss Lawrence, and who has been missing since Tuesday afternoon last, and who is admittedly the one man who can tell the full story of the events leading up to the death of the young couple.

Mad with rage and jealousy, it appears, Disbrow attacked Foster in the presence of Miss Lawrence, whose object was to prevent Foster, a married man, over her old lover, had infuriated him. There was a short struggle, which ended in the triumph for Foster, the athlete. He threw Disbrow to the ground and choked him until he was almost black in the face, letting him up only when he made signs that he had had enough and promised to withdraw from any further claim to the consideration of the young woman.

Miss Lawrence, it is said, watched the conflict of the lovers with calm stability, not interfering in any way until it was all over, when she took her stand beside the victor, making it plain to the vanquished Disbrow that he was a beaten man in every way.

The fact that the fight between two jealous men preceded the drowning of the young couple in the fog and that Disbrow, the one man who can tell anything of what occurred after the fight, has run away and cannot be found, has strengthened the theory of murder which all the people of the village who knew the peculiar relations in which the three stood to one another have held since the disappearance of Disbrow.

There were a number of minor developments yesterday, each of sufficient importance in the minds of Good Ground people to warrant some sort of an investigation. It seems that Coroner Nugent made absolutely no examination of Foster's body after it was brought ashore, the man being buried in the very clothes he wore when taken out of the bay.

It developed that Foster had $50 in money and a large number of papers with him when he started out with Disbrow and Miss Lawrence. Neither money nor papers were found on him when his body was recovered.
Walton's knowledge of the fight on the beach came from Disbrow himself. When Disbrow left Good Ground he took Walton with him, and the young painter was the last person who can be found who saw the missing man. Walton says that he kept his story to himself because he got it from Disbrow while he was living on Disbrow's bounty.

Yesterday he became worried about the matter and after a consultation with his father he made a statement to Coroner Nugent and afterward swore to it.
Walton says that he and Disbrow went to Quaque, where they had a number of drinks together. Then they went to a boarding house, where Disbrow cashed a check for $20. With a part of his money he hired a carriage and he and Walton drove to Esport. All of this time, according to Walton, his companion seemed nervous and excited. Walton asked him several times why he did not take the train to Esport instead of driving, but Disbrow's only reply was that he preferred to drive.
At Esport the two men went to a saloon, remaining there until about 6 o'clock, when they went to a boarding house for dinner. They went to bed at 10 o'clock, Disbrow leaving word to be called at 7 o'clock, as he wanted to get an early train to New York. During all of this time, according to Walton, Disbrow had made no reference to either Foster or Miss Lawrence. Walton had not asked him about them, as he did not know they were missing.
At 3 o'clock in the morning Walton said he was aroused by Disbrow walking up and down the room. The man was wild-eyed and haggard, he says, and pulled incessantly at his pipe. Walton asked him what was the matter and Disbrow replied:
"I'm heartbroken. Dimp shook me for Foster and they've gone off together."
For a time after this Disbrow said nothing, only walking the floor and puffing furiously at his pipe. Suddenly he stopped in front of the bed and said:
"All three of us were out together to have a good time. Early in the morning we went over to Tonnell's, and Dimp and Foster came up into my room. We made some noise and Tonnell came up and raised Cain about bringing the girl up in the room. Dimp went downstairs, and Clarence and I had a row."
"Then Clarence went downstairs, and I was going to bed. But they called to me from below to come down and say good-by, as they were going away for good. I went down and we

MEDICINAL.

Kodol

Dyspepsia Cure

Indigestion affects so many organs besides the stomach that the nature of the disease is sometimes mistaken. Headaches, giddiness, and so-called heart trouble are usually caused by indigestion alone. In such cases it is the stomach trouble which must be cured. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure restores health by digesting your food while the stomach rests. Dieting doesn't mean rest but starvation. You should relieve the stomach without weakening the system by denying yourself proper food. With a sound stomach your other complaints will soon disappear. "After seven years' suffering from indigestion," writes Mrs. Annie Alcorn of Merigold, Pa. "I was cured by three bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure."

Cures All Stomach Troubles.
